ONE MAN CAN RUN THIS HOUSEBOAT

Craft Built to Cruise in Chesapeake Bay.

DESIGNED BY BALTIMOREAN

A Commodious Floating House That Will Nicely Accommodate About Fifteen Persons.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 26 .- A novel essel was launched here last week having been designed by Capt. Leonard J. Nilson, and built under his supervision. She is the first power houseboat of her sort ever built in this section. and is especially interesting to local yachtsmen, as she has been built for cruising on the Chesapeake Bay and its

The craft is 65 feet long, 16 feet beam and draws but 40 inches of water. Her commodiousness is a special feature, together with economy of operation. She is to be propelled by a fifteen horse-

Run by One Man.

The remarkable feature of this boat is that while she will furnish a floating home to accommodate fifteen persons, she will be manned by one man, and will not only float in extremely shoal water but has her bottom especially construct ed for possible logs or rocks.

She is a true houseboat, and as such as small main decks forward and aft, has small main decks forward and aft, the house covering the rest of the hull. The roof of the house is a promenade deck covered with an awning. The engine is controlled by levers, so that the man at the wheel is also the engineer. The "hurricane" deck is reached by a companionway from the interior of the house and steps from the after deck.

starboard and a single berth with drawers to port. The forward end of the compartment is used for drawers, sideboard, lockers, and lounging seat.

Beside the owner's stateroom on the port side is the bathroom.

Two Staterooms.

Back of the bathroom and a storeroom on the other side of the passageway are two more staterooms. These are fitted with double berths, bureaus, lockers, shelves, and divans.

Echind these staterooms is the main cabin, a commodious apartment fitted up with sofas, buffet, sideboard, writing desk, library book shelves, china lockers, and every convenience.

The galley, engine room, cook's stateroom, toilet, ice chest, gas stove and sink occupy the stern of the house.
There is a small deck at the stern un-

Captain Nilson, the designer of the boat, believes the type will prove popular on Chesapeake Bay, as there is no other body of water on the Eastern seaboard so conducive to summer time cruising as the Cheasapeake and the many rivers that empty into it. slonable disability whatsoever.

The only precedent cited for the order, he said, was the executive order pensioning the Mexican veterans at $12.

This was an unfortunate precedent, because the Mexican veteran met the responsibilities of war for only one year, while but $8 was to be given to soldiers who fought for four years during the hardest conflict of history.
